Tennessee Promise Students Have More Successful Higher Education Outcomes

Jack Leetun (see DUI pg. 3)

The Tennessee Comptroller's latest evaluation of the Tennessee Promise program shows that Promise students are earning more credits, are retained, and earn awards at higher rates than non-Promise students who enroll at the same schools.

These statistics are revealed as part of the Comptroller's Office of Research and Education Accountabili-ty's regular evaluation of the effectiveness of the Promise program.

Since 2015, Tennessee Promise has given eligible high school graduates the opportunity to earn an associate degree, certificate, or technical diploma free of tuition and mandatory fees. More than $186 million in Promise scholarships have been paid out since 2015.

While the Promise is a last-dollar scholarship that pays tuition and mandatory fees, it does not cover other costs such as textbooks, supplies, tools, lab fees, and other program-specific fees. The Comptroller's evaluation found that a Promise student at a community college may pay at least $1,000 per year in out-of-pocket expenses.

Tonya Amburn, 47, Church Drive Lenoir City, Mfg/Del/Sale or Poss. of Meth, and Poss. of Drug Para.

Gregory Lingenfelter, 48, Shaw Ferry Road Lenoir City, was charged with Driving on Revoked/Suspended License.

According to the report, Officers with Lenoir City Police Dept. were dispatched to the area of Big Lots for an Officer Investigation involving a male and two females. The complainant at the rent-a-center told dispatch that a male driving an old beat up Corolla, was yelling at two females as they got out of his vehicle and then began to follow them as they went towards Big Lots. Officers arrived on scene and observed the male erratically drive up to the front doors, exit his vehicle, and then walk at a fast pace inside the Big Lots.

Officers were able to locate the male inside and identify him as (Gregory Lingenfelter). Lingenfelter told officers that he had been giving a ride to two females and then got into an argument with them outside in the parking lot. After running Lingenfelter through dispatch, they advised he had a revoked license and no insurance on the vehicle he was operating. Lingenfelter was placed in custody at that time.

Officers were able to locate the other two females (Tonya Amburn) and 2nd female. Amburn informed officers that she had a "rig" in her purse and after a probable cause search of her property, located .05 grams of crystal like substance folded up in a "lottery ticket" and a glass pipe. Amburn was also placed in custody at that time. 2nd female was released from of-the scene and the Corolla (428BLHT) was released to the owner.

Lingenfelter and Amburn were both transported to the Loudon Co Jail, and this did occur in Lenoir City, Loudon Co, TN. The glass pipe was photographed and disposed of.

Students

Students attending a Tennessee College of Applied Technology may pay as much as $3,100 out-of-pocket.

The Comptroller's report includes a number of specific conclusions. Researchers found the Promise program is effective overall, but that enrollment, retention, and attainment gaps exist among certain populations of students.

The evaluation also determined that the most common reason that Tennessee Promise applicants are not eligible for the program is due to their failure to meet an initial requirement to complete eight hours of community service.

The Comptroller's report offers several policy options that may help increase access to Promise, retention of Promise students, and higher credential attainment.

Horoscopes

Pisces 2/19-3/20

Share more of your passion, love, and happiness with the people around you, Pisces. Put your energy toward a group project and work to co-create something much more magical and meaningful than anything you could create on your own.

Aries 3/21-4/19

Drastic shifts in your emotions might be causing you to doubt certain instincts or feelings you have, Aries. Instead of getting frustrated by your inability to make rational sense of these emotions, enjoy the ride that they're offering you.

Taurus 4/20-5/20

Today is one of those days in which you just want to lie on your back on the ground and look up at the clouds, Taurus. Your artistic mind can easily spot one that looks like a dragon, one that is a chair, and one that looks just like your mother.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

You're most likely going to be very drawn to the things that you can't have, Gemini. Instead of getting upset and frustrated by the fact that you aren't getting what you want, look for the lesson in the situation and the reason why you really don't need those things at all.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

You may find yourself staring at a blank page for what seems like hours on end while you try to get down on paper what you really want to say, Cancer. Perhaps your motivation is flagging.

Leo 7/23-8/22

If you find yourself needing to do something in order to escape your life for a while, Leo, then maybe you need to examine your life more closely. Instead of trying to figure out the best means of escape, try to figure out the best means for making your life more enjoyable.

Virgo 8/23-9/22

Keep your fun-loving spirit pure, Virgo. Be careful that you aren't making witty conversation or entertaining jokes at someone else's expense. This type of behavior is likely to come back around and haunt you later.

Libra 9/23-10/22

Your emotions are likely to deceive you today, so be careful about making a judgment about something, Libra. Make sure that you take your time and gather all the necessary facts or else you may end up making an impulsive decision that you regret later on.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

Make your time spent with others much richer by contrasting it with time spent absolutely alone, Scorpio. You'll find that the more energy you can focus on yourself and your own thoughts for a while, the more you will have stored up in your emotional battery to share with others when you're with them.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21

Attend a lecture or some sort of intellectual discussion in which people are actively expressing their ideas and strong opinions, Sagittarius. It's important for you to feel the passion of another who is incredibly focused on his or her dream.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

Your imagination is in all likelihood drawing you to faraway places, Capricorn, and you may find yourself daydreaming constantly. At times, these dreams may seem to get in the way of your usual rational, linear way of dealing with everyday life.
