Governor Lee, Commissioner McWhorter Announce Snap-on to Expand Manufacturing Operations in Carter County

Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee, Department of Economic and Community Development Commissioner Stuart C. McWhorter and Snap-on officials announced today the company will invest $44 million to expand its manufacturing operations in Elizabethton, Tennessee.

Snap-on's planned expansion of the Elizabethton facility will create 50 new jobs through the project: adding nearly 49,000 square feet of manufacturing space and new equipment to support additional capacity for forging, machining, heat treating, chrome plating and assembly at its State Line Road location.

Snap-on is the third largest employer in Carter County, specializing in manufacturing hand tools including ratchets, wrenches, pry bars and pullers. Once fully operational, the expansion allows the Snap-on Elizabethton plant to employ nearly 500 people in Northeast Tennessee.

Since 2020, TNECD has supported 35 economic development projects in the Northeast Tennessee region, resulting in approximately 3,200 job commitments and $981 ket from Martel Rd when he was assaulted. Deputy called for EMS to assess victims injuries and he was transported to Fort Loudon. Matthew Houghton then called in stating he was at Highland Park. Sgt. Cole Rogers and deputy talked to Matthew. Matthew stated that the victim had called his wife stating he was on his way to her house.
