TBI's 'Operation Protecting Tomorrow' Yields Arrests, Identifies Two Dozen Child Online Sexual Exploitation & Sextortion Victims

A dozen people face felony charges and two dozen victims have been identified in a large-scale, collaborative operation to target online child exploitation and sextortion in Tennessee.

Over a three-month period, from February to April, the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation's Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force, housed within its Cybercrime and Digital Evidence Unit (CDEU), conducted Operation Protecting Tomorrow, with work extending to 21 counties in the state and involving almost 20 local, state, and federal law enforcement partners.

Operation Protecting Tomorrow's purpose was to identify and locate children who were victims of sextortion and online sexual exploitation, along with identifying and arresting individuals who aim to harm children online. These investigations stemmed from cybertips from the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC), undercover investigations,

Reaching Out to Assist Victims of Crime

The FBI Victim Outreach Support and Strategy Program supports victims in large-scale FBI cases

Each year, the FBI investigates thousands of crimes involving hundreds of thousands of victims.

Our Victim Services Division (VSD) informs and assists victims navigating the aftermath of crime and the criminal justice process. One piece of that mission involves coordinated outreach to victims to support their needs, a specialty that falls under the FBI Victim Outreach Support and Strategy (VOSS) Program.

The VOSS team develops and implements strategies to communicate key notifications and resources to victims of crimes investigated by the FBI and to offer opportunities for victims to voice their experiences to law enforcement.

"Our bread and butter is connecting people—connecting victims to specialist teams and resources and then connecting investigative teams to victims and giving them a platform to speak," said Benjamin Shannon, VOSS Program manager.

Established in 2017, the VOSS team specializes in outreach in cases with 150 or more Summer Hayes, 43, Isbill Road Madisonville, was charged with, Theft, Simple Possession, and Poss. of Drug Para.

Officer Sparks LCPD, was dispatched to Walmart in reference to a shoplifting. Prior to his arrival the officer was advised by Dispatch that the suspect was a white female with blonde hair, wearing a white shirt and black pants, and was in Row 7 driving a blue Nissan car. Upon arrival to Walmart, the officer located a blue Nissan Altima, bearing TN registration 548BKHM, in Row 7 operated by a female matching the description provided by Walmart employees. The officer made contact with the driver, Summer Hayes, who stated she had been inside of Walmart and an employee did attempt to stop her. Summer's daughter, was inside the vehicle and had also been inside of Walmart with Summer. Summer initially stated she had not stolen any merchandise from Walmart. When conducting a consensual search of Summer's purse, the officer located two clear, glass pipes and a small glass container containing approximately 0.20 grams of a white crystal substance. When asked about the substance and the pipes, Summer stated that she had let a friend borrow her vehicle recently, but stated that the substance was "probably meth". Also inside the purse were numerous articles of merchandise that appeared to be new. Summer and her daughter were transported to Walmart's AP office where we met with , an employee of Walmart who stated that he observed Summer Hayes remove merchandise from its packaging prior to purchasing it, and then conceal the merchandise in her purse. Summer then exited the business and fled to her vehicle. The total value of the stolen merchandise totaled $73.18. The stolen merchandise was returned to Walmart employees, the two glass pipes were seized and destroyed, and the approximately 0.20 grams of a white crystal substance was seized and logged into evidence.

victims. They have worked on cases including the Boston Marathon; the Lewiston, Maine, mass shooting; and the Maui wildfires.

Most often, the VOSS team develops "Seeking Victim Information" questionnaires that can be valuable to the investigation and essential to receiving accurate victim contact information. Although they are not meant to supplement interviews, these questionnaires can narrow down a large victim pool to victims most affected by the crime, act as a line of communication to victim specialists, and offer an opportunity in real-time for the FBI to warn victims about ongoing crimes. The VOSS team also creates accompanying web pages with resources, case updates, and other victim-specific support information on fbi.gov. Any of these materials are translated into a foreign language as needed.

"Our bread and butter is connecting people—connecting victims to specialist teams and resources and then connecting investigative teams to victims and giving them a platform to speak."

VOSS Program Manager Benjamin Shannon

By the time most cases reach the VOSS desk, the FBI investigative team may or may not know the specific population of people affected in a case. Cases where the victim population is unknown—called zero victim population cases—require the VOSS team to do a bit of their own detective work: They need to distribute calls for victims to come forward to be able to offer any services and support.

One case involved a schoolteacher who had abused children over the span of 20 years in a specific town. Over time, those children may have moved to another city, state, or even another country. As they grew up, their names may have changed. Determining how to reach them in the present day is part of the VOSS team's work.

As the VOSS team strategizes the communications channels that are most likely to reach certain demographics, whether nationally or internationally, they will tap partners across FBI divisions, other government agencies, and private organizations, such as the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) and AARP, to help get the word out and publicize the questionnaires and resource pages. Tactics range from creating posts across social media platforms that potential victims may view to leveraging local and national news outlets.

Horoscopes

a fair-weather friend or emotional crutch. Concentrate on your own problems. If someone has a sob story, tell him or her exactly what you think.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

You may have the intellectual side of the equation completely set in your head, Cancer. You've collected all the facts and have all the data worked out in such a way that it's impossible for anyone to fault your calculations. Don't think you're done, because there's one part of the picture left to consider - emotions.

Leo 7/23-8/22

Other people might have a hard time navigating through the day, thanks to the intensity and corruption that's likely to surface. You have nothing to worry about, Leo, because your adaptable nature is perfectly suited to dealing with the stubborn forces that are likely to rear their heads.

Virgo 8/23-9/22

Secure your bunker and make sure it's fully stocked with heavy artillery, because there is bound to be a battle, Virgo. Trust that you need to be fully prepared in order to enter the fight today, because you do.

Libra 9/23-10/22

You tend to get quite emotional about things even though you don't always show it prominently to the outside world, Libra. The difference today is that more people are likely to be openly acting out their emotions, so you, in turn, could feel safer about exposing your true feelings to the people around you.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

If situations get too hot and heavy, Scorpio, your first instinct is to run away or jump to the next subject before anyone notices you're avoiding the serious ones. That's one way to deal with today's intensity, but deep down you know it isn't the best.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21

Your actions today could take an investigative approach, Sagittarius. You're able to probe much more deeply than usual as you search people's eyes for the answers you seek. Feel free to take aggressive action based on your gut instincts.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

Your courageous strength and desire to take a leadership role may be threatening to others today, Capricorn. Be careful of automatically assuming the dominant position before learning what other people feel about the situation.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

You can cut through to the truth quite easily today, Aquarius, so don't hesitate to do so. If you come to an intersection and no one seems to know who should go next, take the initiative and go. It might not be a bad idea to signal your intentions to the other drivers before you make your move.

Pisces 2/19-3/20

You may want to keep your ship on an even keel today, Pisces, but remember that no matter how hard as you try, this simply might not be possible. The wind is blowing pretty hard and you might just have to trim your sails and go full speed ahead.

Aries 3/21-4/19

This is your day to shine in many respects, Aries. The action you take is right on target, so draw back your arrow as far as you can before letting it fly. There is a quiet strength to your being that comes out occasionally. When it does, people will note it for miles around. Today gives you the opportunity to display your incredible strength and passion to the world. Don't hold back.

Taurus 4/20-5/20

You could be wondering why everyone has to be so serious and emotional all of a sudden. You're likely to be feeling this way, too. Take this as a reminder that there are many different walks of life and not all of them necessarily intersect your path. Those forces are apt to make themselves known in quite a traumatic fashion today.
