Podiatrist Indicted For Health Care Fraud

A federal grand jury in Knoxville returned a forty-count indictment on November 3, 2020 against Andrew Lynn, D.P.M., 63, of Knoxville, Tennessee, charging him with health care fraud. Lynn appeared in court on November 5, 2020, before Chief U.S. Magistrate Judge H. Bruce Guyton and entered a plea of not guilty to the charges in the indictment. Lynn was released pending trial, which has been set for January 12, 2021 in front of United States District Judge Thomas A. Varlan, in Knoxville, Tennessee.

The indictment alleges that Lynn, a Doctor of Podiatric Medicine, engaged in a scheme to defraud when he billed Medicare for services not rendered. As part of this scheme to defraud, the indictment alleges that Lynn performed routine foot care and then billed Medicare for unperformed surgical procedures. The indictment alleges that as a result of this scheme, Medicare was billed victim. Raymond's children started fighting and everyone went to break them up. Raymond walked away and came charging back at Sarah. He hit her in the chest knocking her to the ground. He then got into his truck and left the scene. Witness then filled out a written statement of these facts.

Deputy spoke to another witness who was also present during the altercation. He stated that Raymond and victim were arguing when Raymond charged at victim and Raymond's oldest son got in between them. Brothers got into a fight and victim tried to break them up. Raymond then came up and knocked victim to the ground. Witness filled out a written statement of these facts.

Deputy then spoke to Raymond's son who is eighteen years old. He stated that he did not want to pursue any charges against victim for pulling him off of his brother during the fight. While speaking to him Raymond Jacobs called his mother and Deputy was able to speak to him over the phone. He stated that he wanted to pursue charges against victim because she wrapped her arm around his youngest son's neck and slapped him across the face several times. Deputy advised him meet me at the jail to turn his self in for the assault on his sister and he agreed to it. After getting off of the phone with Raymond Deputy asked all parties on scene if victim had assaulted his youngest son and all parties stated that she did not.

Deputy then met Raymond Jacobs at the Loudon County Justice Center and placed him under arrest. Deputy advised him of his Miranda Rights and asked him for his side of the story. He stated that he was watching tick-tock videos with some foul language in them. Victim approached him and started cursing at him telling him that she doesn't want her children to hear that kind of language. He then threw his sweet tea on the ground and his oldest son came up to them. His youngest son thought that his dad was being assaulted by his brother and both of the sons got into a fight. Victim then wrapped his youngest son in a headlock and smacked him across his face. He grabbed victim by her clothes from behind and pulled her off of his youngest son. She then slapped him across the face and he pushed her away from him. He and his youngest son got into his truck and left the scene. Seeing the above facts, Raymond Jacobs was placed in custody and charged with domestic assault. This did occur in Loudon County, Tn.

If convicted, Lynn faces a term of up to ten years in prison, up to three years supervised of release, up to a $250,000.00 fine and mandatory restitution.

This indictment is the result of an investigation by HHS-OIG and FBI. Assistant U.S. Attorney Cynthia F. Davidson will represent the United States.

Members of the public are reminded that an indictment constitutes only charges and that every person is presumed innocent until his/her guilt has been proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

Leader Of Drug Trafficking Organization And Money Launderer Sentenced

On November 4, 2020, Brooke Hensley, was sentenced to 126 months in prison for her role in leading a methamphetamine and heroin drug trafficking organization that distributed kilograms of methamphetamine and heroin throughout the Eastern District of Tennessee and elsewhere. Hensley was also sentenced to 126 months in prison for her role in laundering nearly $1 million in dirty money generated by a phony loan fraud scheme, to be run concurrently with her drug trafficking sentence.

Hensley, 26, of Knoxville, Tennessee, was sentenced by the Honorable Thomas A. Varlan, U.S. District Judge for the Eastern District of Tennessee at Knoxville. The defendant was also ordered to forfeit real property and to pay a $200,000 money judgment.

The extensive investigation revealed that Hensley and others distributed kilo-levels of methamphetamine and heroin throughout east Tennessee. Hensley was the leader of the conspiracy and obtained the methamphetamine and heroin from a co-conspirator in Atlanta, Georgia. The conspiracy involved eight other co-defendants, all of whom have been sentenced in federal court.

Hensley also was sentenced for her role in a money laundering and bank fraud conspiracy in which two others have been charged. Hensley and others received monies from fraudulent loans by making false representations to financial institutions as to income and employment. The defendant and others altered documents to support the loan requests, including providing false income tax return information to support fictitious income. Hensley conspired to launder the proceeds of these fraudulently-obtained loans by opening bank accounts in the names of nominees and transferring the loan proceeds to other conspirators. Hensley laundered over $800,000 of fraudulent loan proceeds.

"Drug traffickers sometimes engage in multiple schemes to illegally make money and 'wash' it. Brooke Hensley is one of those such traffickers, and she did so in running this fraudulent loan scam while she was peddling deadly poison in the Knoxville area.," said U. S. Attorney J. Douglas Overbey. "Thanks to DEA and IRS-CI, she has many years ahead of her to think about the consequences of her conduct and the lives she ruined."

"The fines and prison term handed down in this significant sentencing reflect the seriousness of the charges and the wide scope of criminal activity in which the defendant was engaged, including drug trafficking, money laundering and other financial schemes," said Special Agent in Charge Matthew D. Line. "IRS Criminal Investigation will continue to work with our law enforcement partners to ensure that those who profit from illegal activity are brought to justice."

This drug, money laundering and fraud prosecution, which has led to nine convictions so far, results from an investigation by IRS-CI, DEA, Knoxville Police Department, Knox County Sheriff's Office, Blount County Sheriff's Office, Oak Ridge Police Department, Anderson County Sheriff's Office, Tennessee Department of Safety, and Metropolitan Knoxville Airport Authority Police.

The investigation that led to this prosecution, as described above, falls under the auspices of the Department of Justice's Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force (OCDETF) program, the centerpiece of the Department of Justice's drug supply reduction strategy. OCDETF was established in 1982 to conduct comprehensive, multi-level attacks on major drug trafficking and money laundering organizations. Today, OCDETF combines the resources and expertise of its member federal agencies in cooperation with state and local law enforcement. The principal mission of the OCDETF program is to identify, disrupt, and dismantle the most serious drug trafficking and money laundering organizations and those primarily responsible for the nation's drug supply.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Anne-Marie Svolto represented the United States in the prosecution of this case.
