coach did not adequately document these purchases, which included food and sporting goods, with itemized receipts or invoices. Investigators could not conclusively determine if these purchases were exclusively for the benefit of the Farragut High School Lacrosse Team.

The former lacrosse coach resigned from his position in July 2019.

The Comptroller's Office has communicated the results of its investigation with the Office of the District Attorney General of the 6th Judicial District.

"Farragut High School's lacrosse team and its booster club are required to follow the state's Model Financial Policy for School Support Organizations," said Comptroller Justin P. Wilson. "Fraudulent activity can be prevented by simple practices such as requiring two signatures on all checks, and keeping receipts and other documentation for all purchases."

Tennessee Department of Human Services Announces Renewed Support for Childcare

Licensed providers encouraged to apply for a second round of grants to help improve their businesses

The Tennessee Department of Human Services (TDHS) is announcing the continuation of a grant program that's already helped strengthen early childhood education in more than 1,200 licensed childcare providers across the state.

The department launched the first round of the Support and Enhancement Grant program with the Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee in October 2019. This second round will once again offer providers the option of applying for up to $4,000 in grants ($5,000 in distressed counties) to:

- Increase capacity at their licensed location,
- Hire consultants and coaches, and
- Enhance and add equipment including appliances and supplies.

"In communities across our state, we want to promote childcare that's safe, healthy, and educationally rich," said Interim TDHS Commissioner Tony Mathews. "This investment will continue our momentum in addressing those needs by helping providers enhance quality and increase access, while also assisting them to improve their business efficiencies."

Interested childcare providers are encouraged to sign up for a free Childcare Tennessee membership and apply online by September 1, 2021. Providers who received a grant during the initial cycle are eligible to reapply.

The Department's partnership with the Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee is also providing childcare agencies with other services including free online tools to help with business management and human resources along with access to bulk purchasing of supplies at discounted prices. Some examples of potential savings now available on the Childcare Tennessee website include a 20% discount on childcare supplies, up to 30% off food and food service supplies, and up to 45% off office supplies.

This renewed Support and Enhancement Grant program aligns with other critical investments launched last year to strengthen childcare business operations and sustainability such as the Child Care WAGES@ Program, Business Academies, and Pediatric First Aid and CPR Training/Certification. Childcare programs interested in learning about these business supports should visit the DHS website.

To support parents, TDHS also provides tips for choosing a childcare provider and an interactive database where parents can search for providers in their area.

Cookeville Soldier Named Top Recruiting and Retention NCO in the Southeast

Staff Sgt. Aaron McDermott, assigned to Alpha Company, Recruiting and Retention Battalion for the Tennessee National Guard, was awarded the Southeast Recruiting and Retention NCO of the Year, after competing against recruiters from nine different states and territories, Nov. 20.

The top recruiters from AL, FL, GA, KY, MS, NC, PR, SC, and VI competed during a week-long battalion board meeting, hosted by the Florida National Guard, to recognize the top Strength Maintenance Area Group III Recruiting and Retention NCO. There are seven SMAGs in the country; group III represents the southeast region.

The board is knowledge-based and consists of questions regarding their craft, basic soldier skills, and leadership skills while evaluating their production, retention, and how they contribute to their community.

"To begin this process, Staff Sgt. Aaron McDermott competed against over 100 recruiters in the state of Tennessee to then be selected as one of the top nine recruiters in the state. After this, the top nine compete before a board to then be selected as the Recruiting and Retention NCO of the Year," said Command Sgt. Maj. Mike Owens, Recruiting and Retention's command sergeant major. "From there, he competed in a regional board against nine other Recruiting and Retention NCO's of the Year in the Southeast region. His accomplishments in achieving this award go to prove his hard work, and hard work ethic really paid off."

McDermott now qualifies to compete in the National Recruiter of the Year Board held in Spring 2021.

"This has been the greatest personal achievement in my military career, the amount of work I put into this process was gratifying, and I enjoy every minute," said McDermott.

McDermott became a recruiter in 2017 and resides in Cookeville, Tennessee, with his family. He sends special thanks to his wife Jill and daughters Ava and Adalyn for their unwavering support towards his career and to the Recruiting and Retention Battalion family.
