Sethi

On Wednesday morning a big orange bus with Dr. Manny Sethi rolled into Lenoir City and made a stop at the GOP Headquarters during his campaign for the US Senate seat vacated by Lamar Alexander. Dr. Manny proudly told the story of how his parents came from humble beginnings to America and did it Legally. He explained they learned the American system of being a Doctor here and he and his brother along with both parents helped patients throughout the area many times for little or no pay. Dr. Manny stated he believes we need to back our President and stand behind the Constitution.

Dr. Manny also stated he believes we should be able to attain health care from whomever we choose across state lines as well and the was also need to start making our medicine in America. Dr. Manny believes we need to give incentives for companies to come back to America so we can provide jobs as well as products here much like masks. Dr. Manny stated it was ridiculous how we were so dependent upon China, a communist country, who was responsible for the virus in the first place and at the very least we should be making masks here.

Dr. Manny had a full crowd at the event and asked for everyones vote as he is the Outsider not chosen by the Washington crowd, is a Conservative, is a Surgeon and a Proud American.

More New Laws

New law incentivizing development of brownfield sites in Tennessee to be effective on July 1 — Legislation incentivizing the development of brownfield sites in Tennessee was approved during the 2020 session of the General Assembly. The new law lowers eligibility requirements for brownfield sites that qualify for a franchise and excise tax credit. This action will help rural communities attract new industry and promote the expansion of existing companies. Brownfield sites are redeveloped land that may be tainted by hazardous materials, pollutants, or contaminants. Currently, there are 2,012 brownfield sites across the state. Many properties in Tennessee, which were previously used as gas stations, dry cleaners, factories, or properties that could have contamination from unknown sources, qualify as brownfields. Cleaning up and reinvesting in these properties increases local tax bases, enables job growth, and improves and protects the environment. Current law provides a 50 percent franchise and an excise tax credit on the purchase of brownfield sites for a qualified development project, but the high eligibility requirements to receive the tax credit have almost entirely prevented this incentive from being utilized. The legislation allows projects in Tier 3 and Tier 4, which are the state's at-risk rural counties, to more frequently utilize the tax credit. This would be done by lowering the required capital investment from $25 million to $5 million; raising the amount of the tax credit from 50 percent to 75 percent; removing the acreage requirement, and allowing the community to begin remediation and pass the credit along to a company later. The larger "Tier 1 and Tier 2" counties can also benefit from eligibility adjustments by removing the acreage requirement and allowing the community to begin remediation. They can also pass the credit along to a company later. The law becomes effective July 1.

ifying Tennessee's Prompt Pay Act governing payments between contractors, subcontractors, and lenders was approved during the 2020 session of the Tennessee General Assembly. It helps ensure fair procedures are in place for contractors and subcontractors to recover payment for work completed under a contract, including adequate timing, notice, and penalty provisions. The legislation is the result of numerous negotiations between representatives in the construction and banking industries over the past two years. The new law clarifies that all contractors may recover construction proceeds through an equitable action; sets interest rates for late payment in line with those applicable to the State of Tennessee purchases; and introduces a "stop work" notice procedure to allow contractors and subcontractors to stop work when they are not paid per the contract agreement. It also provides a "Demand for Reasonable Assurances" to ensure the owner has obtained sufficient funding to pay for all labor and materials on a project.

Finally, the legislation clarifies the construction statute of repose applies to litigation and arbitration and affirms that limitations of liability do not violate public policy.

Pilot program allows personal delivery devices on walkways — A bill allowing delivery robots to operate at low speeds on sidewalks and crosswalks in a pilot program in Tennessee has been approved by the Tennessee General Assembly. The robots won't be able to exceed 10 miles per hour and must be equipped with a braking system to come to a controlled stop. The robots have sensors that stop them when approaching a person, animal, or item. They would only operate in pedestrian areas and must be clearly marked, including contact information. The new law does not preempt local governments' ability to regulate the personnel delivery devices if necessary for public safety.

Consumer insurance protections become law — Legislation was adopted prohibiting a person from creating false certificates of property or insurance documents which contain untrue or misleading information. The new law prohibits third parties from using certificates to alter insurance term policies. It addresses problems that have arisen of third-parties attempting to request and use certificates to expand or alter the terms of the underlying policy. A certificate of insurance is an informational document that shows a good faith snapshot of a party's coverage at a certain time. It is not the insurance policy and cannot alter or amend the underlying policy it represents. Clarifying that definition of insurance certificates and insurance policies will help curb third-party vendors from misleading consumers.

Legislation ensures World War II Veterans can have their military service indicated on their driver's license — Legislation was approved by the General Assembly to ensure that World War II veterans can have their military service indicated on their driver's license or photo identification card. Currently, to receive the acknowledgment, veterans must provide a certified copy of their Department of Defense form 214 (DD 214) showing dates of service and that the applicant received an honorable discharge. This certification process, however, did not take into consideration World War II veterans whose service pre-dated implementation of the DD 214 paperwork. Effective July 1, the new law corrects this error by allowing honorably discharged veterans whose service pre-dates the form to utilize an AGO Form 53-55 or NAVPERS 553 as documentation, continuing the state's long-held tradition of acknowledging and honoring our World War II veterans.

New law expands emergency service tags to more professions — A new law passed this year which allows additional emergency service personnel to be issued special emergency license plates. The legislation expands the definition of emergency service squad to include emergency medical technicians, paramedics, emergency medical technician paramedics, and other emergency medical responders. It also includes physicians and nurses who accompany or attend a patient in an ambulance. Emergency responders seeking emergency tags are required to submit proof of their profession to their county clerk's office.
