Number of States with High Rates of Adult Obesity More Than Doubles

Urgent need to address widespread national disparities in obesity

Nineteen states and two territories have at least 35% of residents with adult obesity – more than doubling the number of states with a high obesity prevalence since 2018 – according to data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The 2021 Adult Ob-sity Prevalence Maps also highlight the need to address disparities in obesity across states and racial and ethnic populations, through increased access to obesity prevention and treatment.

Combined data from 2019–2021 show the number of states and territories with an obesity prevalence of 35 percent or higher varies widely across race and ethnicity:

American Indian or Alaska Native adults: 31 states

Asian adults: 0 states

Black adults: 36 states and the District of Columbia

Hispanic adults: 27 states and Guam

White adults: 10 states

Obesity

race, ethnicity, and location is based on self-reported height and weight data from the Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System.

Adults with obesity are at increased risk for many other serious health conditions such as heart disease, stroke, type 2 diabetes, some cancers, severe outcomes from COVID-19, and poor mental health. Additionally, many people with obesity report being stigmatized because of their weight.

"This report illustrates the urgent need for making obesity prevention and treatment accessible to all Americans in every state and every community," said CDC acting principal deputy director, Debra Houry, M.D., M.P.H. "When we provide stigma-free support to adults living with obesity, we can help save lives and reduce severe outcomes of disease."

Accessible and Equitable Approach Needed for Obesity Prevention and Treatment

These findings highlight the importance of equitable access to prevention and treatment. Supporting adults with obesity and its related health issues will take a sustained, comprehensive effort from all parts of society to reduce disparities and improve the health of our communities. In addition, obesity is a disease for which treatment options exist, including proven weight management programs, medications, and bariatric surgery. However, there is inequitable access to proven obesity treatment in the United States.

The National Strategy released today, in advance of tomorrow's White House Conference on Hunger, Nutrition, and Health outlines concrete steps the Federal government can take to help states and communities reduce these disparities so that fewer Americans experience diet-related diseases such as diabetes, obesity, and hypertension.

"There are key actions and resources that can help slow and ultimately reverse the obesity epidemic," said Karen Hacker, MD, MPH, director of CDC's National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion. "These include supporting healthy individual lifestyle changes and ensuring that all people have access to healthy foods, evidence-based health care services, obesity treatment programs, and safe places for physical activity."

The COVID-19 pandemic has led to changes in many people's lives and habits that have the potential to affect their weight positively or negatively. To ensure health equity, states and communities using these data to prioritize actions will need to address health disparities and social determinants of health such as poverty, lack of access to health care, healthy and affordable food, and safe and convenient places to be physically active. Individuals who are worried about excess weight should talk with their health-care provider about their concerns, family history of chronic disease, current lifestyle, and other health risks.

The 19 states and two territories are: Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia, and Puerto Rico and the US Virgin Islands.

Horoscopes

even think of the person you care about the most. The unmistakable glow that surrounds you is likely to attract others to your side even if you aren't in the market for a romantic relationship right now.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

When it comes to relationships with others, be careful about insisting that everything be done only your way, Scorpio. It could be that you have such high expectations of your partner that he or she will never be able to live up to your standards. Basically, you're setting the stage for failure by demanding that the person for you be of a certain make and model.

Sagittarius

11/22-12/21

Your fantasies could come true now, especially when it comes to relationships, Sagittarius. This could be the moment you've always dreamed about, so get ready. The attractive, romantic person in the corner has been keeping an eye on you all night. Your blood is pumping faster than ever. Remind yourself that all dreams can come true on a day such as today.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

While you normally like all of your romantic relationships to be extremely nurturing and comforting, you may find that this isn't always possible, Capricorn. There's a disconnect between you and a close partner right now that could be hard to rectify. Time is really the only thing that's likely to resolve this sort of problem. Remember that all of your relationships can't always go exactly according to plan.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

A creative project that you've been working on may be coming to a climactic peak now, Aquarius. Discuss your progress with others and feel free to hold an informal critique in order to get honest feedback on your work. A piece of art should stir some sort of reaction inside another person. Consider ways in which you can challenge the people around you with your talent.

Pisces 2/19-3/20

Be aware that love is likely to wear some sort of disguise today, Pisces. There's something fanciful about the way in which this new romance will manifest, so get ready. Don't think that love always has to be planned and calculated. There is a strong sense of spontaneity associated with the delicious love interest of the day. Don't dismiss those who don't seem practical or levelheaded enough for you.

Aries 3/21-4/19

Make your loved one a romantic dinner tonight, Aries. Escort him or her on an imaginary magic-carpet ride to fantastic places that encourage a playful mood and carefree attitude. Consider having a bottle of wine at a playground afterward, if possible. Decorate your house with candles and burn some incense. Create a mood that will calm the nerves and soothe the soul. Your sense of romance is right on target.

Taurus 4/20-5/20

When it comes to romantic relationships, Taurus, you might find that you're playing more of a game of hide-and-go-seek than a combined effort toward friendship, trust, and honesty. It could be that you're purposely trying to hide in order to test the stamina of your opponent. You might want to take a new approach now, one that involves an effort toward connecting instead of distancing.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

You're apt to be somewhat fickle when it comes to love and romance right now, Gemini. The key for you now is freedom. The problem with this mindset is that it might be misinterpreted. Your partner may think you simply aren't interested in him or her anymore. Remind your partner that it's OK to love someone while also needing time and space to do things on your own.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

You may be confused when it comes to matters of the heart, Cancer. Perhaps you feel cheated when the object of your desire doesn't give you complete attention at all times. The fundamental security of your being is your responsibility, not someone else's. Find a way to incorporate your dreams into the dreams of others instead of always working toward goals at opposite sides of the spectrum.

Leo 7/23-8/22

Your fairytale imagination of how your romantic life should run is hooking you up with many different opportunities, Leo. Whether you realize it or not, the optimal situation you seek is within your grasp. Make sure that you aren't trying to manipulate a certain person into becoming the person you want him or her to be. If you're unhappy in your relationship, perhaps you need to find someone new.

Virgo 8/23-9/22

Your dreams work out quite nicely in your head, Virgo, but the problem now is how to turn them into some sort of real-life scenario. Be careful of taking too intellectual of an approach. When it comes to relationships, things don't normally happen logically or rationally. You're going to have to leave a great deal up to chance, so just learn to deal with things as they come.
