Investigators seeking potential victims of Georgia man charged with sexual exploitation of children

A Georgia man has been indicted on multiple child exploitation charges, and investigators are seeking information from individuals who might have had prior contact with the defendant.

Todd Eric Sisk, 48, of Baxley, Ga., is charged via federal indictment with Attempted Production of Child Pornography, which carries a mandatory minimum sentence upon conviction of 15 years in prison, up to 30. He also is charged with Distribution of Child Pornography, Possession of Child Pornography, and Transfer of Obscene Material to a Minor, said Jill E. Steinberg, U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Georgia.

"We are committed to protecting our most vulnerable citizens," said U.S. Attorney Steinberg. "In collaboration with our law enforcement partners, we will strive to keep our children and our communities safe."

After initiating an investigation into suspicious online activity in November 2021, the Walton County, Fla., Sheriff's Office identified Sisk as a suspect and contacted investigators from Homeland Security Investigation

The NEWS HERALD in their editorial column. He used the Editorial in publications in all four counties to further spread the lies and false information. The Publisher and Editor of the failing publication basically retired after the lawsuit was filed. The publication and both the publisher and editor were found guilty of just printing outright false information and lies by their own people with no facts to base the article on which they continue to do particularly during election time as we saw in the last election with new staff members, so the same tricks being done by a small group still continues. Former DA McCluen actually had a major grievance and complaint filed against him when he failed to show up for court for his client which was a Tellico Village case. The entire time during his tenure he went on tirades of political revenge against several individuals unsuccessfully of course with the News Herald defending him the entire way with continued misinformation and lack of facts.

A local attorney and candidate for judge in the last election in Lenoir City Amanda Smith also made the list and has lost her license to practice law as well.

The suspension comes after the attorneys failed to file legal education paperwork required each year. They were also sent several notices before the suspensions and chose to ignore them.

Suspensions: CLE Suspensions

FOR FAILURE TO COMPLETE CONTINUING LEGAL EDUCATION REQUIREMENTS IN 2022

The following attorneys were suspended by the Supreme Court on Aug. 17, 2023, for failing to comply with Rule 21 of the Rules of the Tennessee Supreme Court, which requires mandatory continuing legal education, during the 2022 compliance year. Attorneys who have since complied with CLE requirements, and for whom notice has been received from the court, are noted as reinstated.

The TBA provides this information as a member service and not as an official record of an attorney's status. Interested individuals should check with the Board of Professional Responsibility for the official status of a Tennessee licensed attorney.
